Mighty Strokes To Follow War In Europe—Full British Support

By W. L. BEALE, Jr.

QUEBEC, Sept. 16.—(P)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, completing their second Quebec war conference, reported today they had reached decisions on all points of wounding up the war in Europe and "the destruction of the barbarians of the Pacific."

In a statement and at a joint news conference, they emphasized that their biggest problem had been how to employ the mighty forces which will be free for a devastating attack on Japan once Europe is out from under "the corroding hell of Nazism."

As the communiqué phrased it, the difficulty was "to find room and opportunity for marshalling against Japan the massive forces which each and all of the nations concerned are ardent to engage against the enemy."

But they said all questions were settled, "in a very short space of time" and the British Prime Minister remarked that it was easy for him to reach an understanding with Mr. Roosevelt. He pointed to their long associations and personal contacts, and observed:

"We are not limited. We talk over every aspect of the situation. In fact, we get along so well and understand each other so well, that it makes it easier and quicker to reach an understanding."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that he and the Prime Minister were not yet ready to put a specific date on the downfall of the enemy in Europe, but when it comes, he said, the Allies will do the fastest possible job on Japan.

Pledge To Participate
The British empire, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, is, of course, looking forward to participation.

And Churchill, himself, formally pledged that the armies, air forces, and naval power of his tremendous empire would be thrown into an offensive against the Pacific foe when the fighting in Germany is over.

The two United Nations leaders sat side by side on the wooded terrace of Quebec's ancient citadel, and in turn told the press of their deliberations.

No questions were permitted, Churchill smilingly remarked that there was a bit of friction at this year's conference—but he said it resulted only from British fears that the United States might try to take on too much of the Pacific battling by itself.

"You can't have all the good things to yourselves," the Prime Minister said.

Buzz Bombs On London Again

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(P)—A blast of buzz-bombs drove home to all Britons today the government warning that London is still unsafe from the last flings of German vengeance and chilled the blackness of this last night before the lights go on again over most of England.

The robot attack—apparently launched from specially equipped Heinkel 111's over the North Sea—smashed into southern England and the London area at dawn, killing at least nine persons and starting millions out of premature complacency.

About the time Allied troops were overrunning the robot launching sites along the Calais coast across the channel, Lt. Col. Sir Duncan Sandys, in charge of the robot defense system, had announced that blackout laws in effect for the past five years would be relaxed tomorrow. However, Sandys warned Londoners that future attacks, though less severe than the robot raids of this summer, could be expected.

In today's German remote control attack, the first since Aug. 31, three flying missiles were shot down.

Robots launched from planes can be flung against England as long as the Nazis have airfields left within Germany, a government spokesman pointed out.

Pours 864 Gallons Of Gasoline In Sewer

DETROIT, Sept. 16.—(P)—A trucker delivering gasoline to a service station took a reading of what he thought was the gasoline tank, found it empty and poured 864 gallons of gas. A second reading showed the tank still empty. The trucker had poured the gasoline down the sewer.

Gladstone Bag Taken From Train Found

Trio Arrested Wednesday Night Charged With Theft

The trio of two men and a woman, picked up last Wednesday night near Fifth street and Hancock avenue, who were fined $20 and costs on a charge of vagrancy in the court of Judge C. W. Bente, sitting as ex officio justice of the peace, are now charged with grand larceny. They are accused of stealing from a Missouri Pacific passenger train a suit case belonging to a passenger riding that train.

They are Barbara Evans Osborne, her husband Charles V. Osborne and Raymond Reginald Hellums, all giving their homes as Kansas City. The man and wife both confessed to the use of narcotics.

Questioning at police headquarters Wednesday night and Thursday brought no information regarding the suit case which was stolen from the train and belonged to Mrs. Dorothy Evers, of Boston, Mass., whose husband, a lieutenant was killed overseas.

Lost Bag Found
Chief of Police Anson Finnell received a "tip" concerning the trio and continued his investigation, which resulted in the recovery of the gladstone bag at a local hotel, where the Osborne woman had registered. However, a picture of Mrs. Evers' husband had been removed from a leather frame, and the government papers disposed of, no trace of them having been found to date.

When all three were called into the office of Chief Finnell none would at first admit any knowledge of the theft of the bag, but they later admitted they had stolen it, one telling the story of taking it from the baggage rack. The woman couldn't quite remember carrying it from the train but guessed it was possible, and the third member of the group was willing to take the "rap" if the other two were released. Chief Finnell was in no mood for bargaining when he learned the lieutenant's picture had been destroyed, the papers done away with.

"All I hope," Chief Finnell said, "is the court 'throws the book' at you three. It is the lowest thing I ever heard of when three common thieves steal property belonging to the widow of a soldier, who gave his life for his country and protection of such people as you three and then you destroy her only remembrances of him."

No Sympathy For Trio
There was no sympathy in the chief's office, when they wouldn't offer to help find the articles, by those who heard the woman crying "I'm too sick," and her husband trying to make a bargain to get her some "junk" saying maybe she'll tell you after she's got it. Hellums, told the story of taking the bag, but denied any knowledge of the picture or papers.

Special Officers A. C. Ford of the Missouri Pacific and L. L. Lawrence of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, assisted Chief Finnell in clearing up the case.

The trio is to be given a preliminary hearing on the grand larceny charge, probably Monday before Judge Bente, sitting as ex officio justice of the peace. Their bonds were set at $2,500 each, but they will not be permitted to give them as they are now serving out the $20 fine and costs on the vagrancy charges, being unable to pay the fines and costs last Thursday.

Pfc. W. D. Curry Dies In France

Pfc. Walter D. Curry was killed in action in France on August 3, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Curry, 1713 South Osage avenue. His wife resides in Gainesville, Mo.

Pfc. Curry was born in Longwood, Mo., August 24, 1920, and grew to young manhood in that community. Before entering service, three years ago, he was employed in a defense plant in St. Louis. He was married in July, 1943, to Miss Ada Farol Freeman, of Gainesville.

Surviving besides his wife and parents are the following brothers: James Tom Curry, F 1/c, who left Saturday after spending a twenty day leave with his parents here; Cpl. Estill Curry in India; Donald, Clyde and Claude of the home; Pfc. David Curry in Italy, who was recently awarded the bronze star; John of near Houstonia, and one sister, Mary Jane Curry of the home.

Pfc. Curry was in the heavy artillery division of the army. He had met only one boy from home while serving overseas, Pvt. John Greer, a close friend and schoolmate at Longwood school. The two boys met on Christmas day, 1943. Pfc. Curry had been overseas sixteen months.

Dewey Would Exercise Purge

Assures Ickes And Perkins Not Be In Cabinet

By GARDNER BRIDGE
SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 16.—(P)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey countered frequent opposition charges that he is a protégé of former President Herbert Hoover tonight with the declaration that "I haven't had the benefit of Mr. Hoover's advice."

"Does that mean that you haven't been in communication with Mr. Hoover since you were nominated?" asked a reporter. "I don't know where he has been," replied the Republican presidential nominee. "And you know where I've been."

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 16.—(P)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey placed Interior Secretary Ickes and Labor Secretary Perkins high on his cabinet "purge" list today as he carried his presidential campaign from the agricultural midwest to the Pacific northwest.

The Republican nominee told a news conference in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, that the first thing people had been asking him was "will you promise to get rid of Ickes as your first act?"

"I told them he would be very high on any list," Dewey grinned. He conceded then, in response to a question, that there was some competition between Ickes and Perkins and "that's why I didn't specify who would be first."

If President Roosevelt is defeated for a fourth term, his cabinet normally would be replaced.

Post For West

Soldier Home From France Learns Of Brother's Death

The doorbell rang at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Solomon, 1807 West Broadway, at 5:30 o'clock Friday morning. Mrs. Solomon, awake and waiting for her alarm clock to sound, arose, went to the door, wondering who could be there at that hour of the morning. To her great surprise, when she opened the door, she found standing there their son, Cpl. Raphael W. Solomon, from whom they had not heard since August 22, and so far as the parents knew he was still in France.

The meeting was a happy one, and a sad one too, because Mrs. Solomon, after welcoming the son, had to tell him that his brother, their only other child Cpl. Calvin Solomon, had been killed in France on August 2.

Sharp Increase In Point Values

Applicable To Many Processed Foods Rationed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration tonight ordered sharp increases in point value for those processed foods still rationed in a companion move to elimination of points on a wide variety of other canned foods.

Both the higher points and removal of many items from rationing are effective Sunday.

Doubled or boosted even more sharply in most cases, the new point values apply to all canned and bottled fruits, four fruit and vegetable juices, tomatoes, catsup, and chili sauce.

The new ration value of a number two can of tomatoes is 20 points, up from 5, while the coupon cost of peaches, pears and pineapple is hiked from 43 points to 80 for number two and one half cans. Pineapple juice goes to 50 points from 25 and tomato juice to 20 from 6 points for 18-ounce cans.

To Multiples Of Ten
All of the new values are fixed in multiples of ten because the system of blue tokens as ration change is being discontinued Sunday. Blue tokens may be used in units of ten until October 1 in buying processed foods. After that they will have no value.

As announced earlier, processed foods being removed from rationing are all jams, jellies, fruit butters, asparagus, lima beans, corn, peas, pumpkin and squash, mixed vegetables, baked beans, tomato sauce, paste and puree, and all varieties of soups and baby foods. Other vegetables except tomatoes have been ration-free for some time.

In announcing the new ration values, effective through September 30, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles said:

"These point values are higher not because of a change in the supply picture of commodities remaining under rationing, but because of the removal from rationing of nearly all vegetables, special products and fruit spreads."

"The War Food Administration's allocation of processed foods still rationed has not changed. What has changed is the point purchasing power x x x."

Under the new setup housewives will continue to get 50 blue points a month.

Red point value on meats, butter and dairy products are unchanged. However, combination spaghetti dinners, formerly on the processed food chart, are being shifted to the red point chart, with a one-point value for cartons containing from one to one and one half ounces of greater cheese.

Troops of Reds Roll Through Bulgar Capital

German Report Says Soviets In Drive On Riga

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 17.—(P)—Red army troops yesterday rolled through the capitulated Bulgarian capital of Sofia in their drive toward Yugoslavia, only 30 miles beyond, while other Soviet forces shelled burning Warsaw and began laying pontoon assault bridges across the Vistula river from the captured suburban area of Praga.

Berlin broadcasts reported without Soviet confirmation that three Red armies, using upwards of 400,000 men in a big new offensive in the north, had begun a drive on Riga and that one spearhead in an 18-mile advance was only 20 miles south of the Latvian capital on the Baltic sea.

A late dispatch said the Russians had begun stringing pontoons on the Vistula opposite Warsaw despite the raking fire of German batteries on the western banks. Officially, Moscow merely reported that the Red army had extended its artillery arc with the seizure of additional localities along the east bank of the river northwest of the Praga bridgehead.

Nazis Use Prisoners
A midnight communiqué supplemented said the Germans had used battalions of prisoners and rear detachments as well as a Hungarian cavalry division in the bitter fighting around Praga, and that 600 Germans were killed in night and day Nazi counterattacks.

A communiqué from General Bor, Polish underground leader in Warsaw, said his unit had frustrated German efforts to establish strong-points on the Vistula's western banks with which to meet the Soviet onslaught.

"The Germans are carrying out widespread demolitions and blowing up barracks, factory buildings, utility works and big office buildings," the Polish statement said. "We are established in closer contact with a Soviet division in Praga."

A Moscow communiqué announced the entry into Sofia by units of Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army, putting the Russians within 60 airline miles of the Skopje-Nis-Belgrade railway, German escape route from Greece and lower Yugoslavia, which already has been cut by Marshal Tito's Partisans.

Drive Been Swift One
Since their crossing into Bulgaria Sept. 8 the Russians had traveled an airline distance of 225 miles to Sofia in their swift drive to annihilate all the Axis troops in Yugoslavia, Greece, and Albania. Elements of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army already had established contact with the Yugoslav Partisans at Negotin, south of the Danube river 100 miles northwest of Sofia.

Bulgar troops were aiding in the Balkan cleanup.

In the wheeling attack outflanking Warsaw on the north the Russians and Poles during the day captured five more localities above the captured suburb of Praga—steadily driving the enemy into a pocket formed by the Vistula, Bug and Narew rivers, the communiqué said.

In northern Transylvania the Russians aided by Romanian troops captured more than 50 localities, the communiqué said.

In northeastern Romania the Russians also captured Vatra-Dornei, 55 miles southeast of the tip of Czechoslovakia and only 10 miles from Hungarian-annexed Transylvania, in their advance through the Carpathian mountains on the approaches to Bargau pass.

Meanwhile a Hungarian communiqué broadcast by Budapest disclosed that either Russian or Romanian troops, or both, were fighting close to the pre-war Hungarian frontier.

U. S. Troops Not Chat With The Germans

Must Treat The Civilians There As Enemies

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 16.—(P)—Troops of the First U. S. Army will not be permitted to fraternize with German civilians and are expected to remember that they must treat them as enemies.

For the first time, American troops are going into country where the civilian population can be expected to be hostile and the army does not want the men to expose themselves to unnecessary danger, nor permit any leaks in security through the natural friendliness of Doughboys.

In the drive across France, Belgium and Holland the troops were among friendly, sympathetic populations which were eager to assist. These conditions change at the border.

Difficult To Distinguish
There is no doubt many of the Germans will be happy to see the arrival of the Americans because it means the end of the war for them, an end of the dreaded Gestapo and the finish of Nazi domination. But who will be a friend and who an enemy no soldier can say.

No longer can a Doughboy stop along the road and chat even casually with the people and only those on official business will be able to leave bivouac areas to mingle with civilians. Their relations will be business only.

Neither can soldiers wander about the country in small groups or singly on sight-seeing expeditions, for there always is the danger of ambush by some of Hitler's fanatics or SS (Elite) troops who have donned civilian clothes.

American soldiers will not be allowed to forget that for four years the Germans have been waging total war against American Allies and much of that time against America herself, and that the Germans individually and collectively are soldiers of the enemy.

Troops will be expected to conduct themselves in a reserved, soldierly manner to dispute enemy propaganda which has terrified the average German of the arrival of the American army.

The German has been told for months that if an American army invades Germany there will be rape, pillage and mass murders.

Capt. Croxton Killed In Action

Captain Thomas Wade Croxton, 28, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Croxton, of Monticello, Ark., was killed in France in action on August 26, his parents of that place have been advised.

His father, who has been pastor of the First Baptist church at Monticello, Ark., the past week accepted a call to the First Baptist church in Sedalia. When notified of the captain's death he and Mrs. Croxton were at Hot Springs, Ark., for a brief stay.

The young man received numerous honors when in high school and college and had been in the military service for three years and overseas since the first of this year.

He was in the infantry and assigned to a cannon company. Survivors include his parents, a brother and a sister.

On Super-Highway Near Cologne As Allies Pound On A 500-Mile Front

By HOWARD COWAN

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 16.—(P)—The U. S. First army, driving through the famed Siegfried line in 24 hours fought out into the open today on one of Hitler's super-highways within 26 miles of Cologne as six Allied armies pounded forward on a 500-mile front.

The hard-hitting U. S. Third army freed the western half of the town of Thionville, only 15 miles from the rich German industrial Saar basin, and in a lightning move sent tanks cutting in behind Metz, the most important French fortress city still in enemy hands.

The approach to Cologne was reported in a front dispatch which said Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' infantry had moved on 12 miles east of the surrounded German frontier fortress of Aachen and asserted the westwall breach south of the city was so wide the whole German defense system was in peril.

Patrols at a number of points were beyond the last fortifications before the Rhine.

Aachen Appears Tottering
Doughboys fought into Aachen, and it appeared to be toppling.

(The Paris radio, adding to the picture of spreading German reverses, declared the Americans had fought into the center of the great Breton port of Brest and had taken 12,000 prisoners. This report was without official confirmation.)

The Saar basin, with its wealth of coal, iron and industry, was imperiled by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's third army fighting inside Thionville, only 15 miles away.

Here the third seized a section of the Maginot line, which had been remodeled to form outworks for the Siegfried line, and turned its German-installed 105-mm guns on the enemy holding the half of Thionville on the east bank of the Moselle.

The flaming German frontier village of Wallendorf, 63 miles southeast of Aachen, marked the point of the fourth American entry into Germany and brought war grimly home to the German citizens. The village was put to the torch by doughboys to smoke out snipers.

Confronted By Thick Walls
This penetration was about halfway between two others at Prum and Trier, where the doughboys after driving eight to ten miles inside Germany struck hard cores of resistance in the main belt of fortifications—some with walls six feet thick.

It was disclosed officially that in the Prum area the First army had made a "narrow penetration" in the Siegfried line at Branda-

May Require Adjustments

Because of point changes effective today September 17, in processed foods, some grocery retailers may require an adjustment in net point inventory, an OPA official said. Any retailer wanting adjustment must make application with War Price and Rationing Board with which he is registered on Form R-315 and give following information:

Point value of inventory as of close of business September 16, using point values effective September 17. Items in transit, but not yet received, should be included.

Balance in ration bank account. Points on hand not deposited in bank account. Points paid to supplier for foods not yet received. Points received for food delivered.

Americans Always First—

An American soldier wounded in Patton's charge across France was returned to London for hospitalization. He made friends with some wounded British Tommies who soon became tired of the Yankee's boastfulness about American superiority. So they loaded him to the sleeping point with whiskey; then as a joke let him down into a newly dug grave.

When he awoke in the morning, he climbed out, looked around and exclaimed: "America's still ahead. Resurrection morning, and I'm the first man up."

Victory Is Not Everywhere—

The American people are being conditioned, and nurturing themselves for something less than Japanese unconditional surrender.

We may or may not get unconditional surrender from Germany depending on whether it will be necessary to eliminate Nazi armies one by one, or whether some responsible central German agency will evolve to negotiate for that nation as a whole.

Progress of Allied armies on the European front has been spectacular. Victory is within grasp there. But is Churchill correct in declaring at Quebec that "victory is with us everywhere?"

Suppose the Germans collapse within the next few weeks. What then? Allied emotional pitch will be at its exultant extreme. Families and wives of soldiers will expect the early return home of their boys. Having been encouraged in this wishful thinking, the people will suffer a depressive shock when the true facts about the situation in China are revealed; when they learn that the boys in the Far East and the boys in Europe yet must defeat the bitterest enemy—Japan—; must go on to more battlefields.

Japan is doing right well in China now; maybe a bit better than we have been informed. Also on the continent Japan occupies the vast area of Manchuria, Korea, Indo-China, Burma, the Malay peninsula. Maybe Japan intends to let go one by one the Pacific islands she stole while she consolidates her strength everywhere in the vast reaches of eastern Asia. She could actually abandon the home islands and continue the fight on the mainland.

So if the Allies reckon for a quick victory over Japan after Germany succumbs and a quick victory does not come will the folks back home continue to support their leaders in pressing for unconditional victory?

If we condition our minds for a prompt triumph over the Japanese, that is just what the Nipponese want us to do. They know a disillusioned America will not continue to press for the hardest of surrender terms.

But Japan fears a determined America, and determined Allies. That is why it is so necessary for the victors over Germany to remain determined and not become disheartened because military leaders may announce that it is impractical to send shiploads of American troops back home immediately after the European battles are ended.

Trier of Interest to Latin Students

In their text book, if they will examine closely a map of the Roman Empire, first year Latin students will see the name of a town, Trier, on the northern boundary.

Trier, in Germany, has been under the guns of the American First Army this past week. After the armistice in 1918 it was occupied by units of the Third Army. Long before that, in the days of Diocletian it was recognized for its strategic position, and was made the capital of Belgica Prima. This ancient city derived its name from one of the most powerful tribes of the Belgae, conquered by Julius Caesar in 56 B. C.

The place abounds with 2,000-year-old Roman structures and improvements. The most famous relic preserved is the "Holy Coat of Trier," believed by the devout to be the seamless robe of the Savior.

At this time it is of particular interest to Latin students to give more than passing thought to the history of Trier: if only by the casual reading of its background chronicled in Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Germans Fear The Russians—

A popular deduction on the trend of European warfare is that some sort of a deal has been made by the Nazis to allow the Americans and British to invade their land against mere token resistance while the Germans hold the Russians in the east. The reason—Nazi fear of Russian vengeance for the unholy crimes the Germans committed while they were pushing back Stalin's forces two years ago.

The idea seems to be the Russians will go just as berserk as the Germans did, slaughtering women and children; taking vengeance for some of the most awful examples in history of German inhumanity.

This is hardly likely if one senses the tone of reason and restraint expressed by a famous Soviet writer, Ilya Ehrenburg in his book, "The Tempering of Russia."

Many factual descriptions of German atrocities are given in this book that certainly must generate hatred for the Germans. Yet the author observes: "The feeling of malice does not tempt us even now. The idea of vengeance cannot satisfy our outraged reason. We talk not of spite, but of hatred, not of vengeance but of justice. A German soldier with a gun in his hand is for us not a man, but a Fascist. We hate him. We hate each one of them for the crimes they have committed collectively."

"If a German soldier lowers his gun and gives himself up, we shall not touch him—he will live. Maybe the future Germany will change him; maybe from a dull murderer he will be transformed into a toiler and a man. Let German pedagogues worry about that. We think of something else; of our land, our work, our families."

Under Hitler's regime the German barbarians are not allowed to read such articles of restraint. But such books are read in Russia and have their effect on the minds of the people. It is not likely the Soviet armies will play the role of butchers in conquering their enemies.

Don't Get Behind With The Haulin'—

Political campaign speakers are repeatedly referring to President Roosevelt as "the tired, quarrelsome old man" and to candidate Dewey as "a half-baked boy who doesn't know anything."

Such oratorical petulance makes no impression on the voters either way. The people are more sober-minded and concerned with domestic and international issues.

Reminds me of the days forty years ago around the Tenth street and Montebau neighborhood. The old codger who drove the coal wagon was called a "tired, quarrelsome old man," by the "half-baked" neighborhood kids who attacked him with snowballs and in turn dodged the pellets of coal thrown back at them.

Yet the "tired old man" somehow got his coal delivered and dumped in a back yard, and the "half-baked kids" somehow carried it in buckets into the house. Both had their job to do and got it done. The "half-baked" boys could have driven that coal wagon just as well as the "tired old man" and the "tired old man" could have carried the coal into the house just as well as the "half-baked boys."

The thing Mom and Pop were most concerned with was that during the bickering between the coal man and the boys, nobody got behind with their haulin'. Maybe that's the way Mom and Pop look at the political situation today.

It Never Fails—

About the time we become idealistically attached to a new innocence-inspiring screen personality, up pops a news item that he or she is involved in a domestic squabble or divorce action.

Ever Hopeful Nazis—

"Dot's id! Dot's id!" exclaimed a Nazi war prisoner on a boat entering New York harbor as the 90-mile-an-hour hurricane cut loose Thursday night. "Der Feuhrer, der Feuhrer marches again. Der storm iss anoder off his seekredt weapons he promised to vipe America off der earth. Heil, Hitler!"

In desperation, poor saps will believe anything.

Headlines of Twenty-Six Years Ago—

Out of curiosity over what the Sedalia Democrat newspaper headlines revealed 26 years ago, September 17, 1918, I consulted the files. Page one items referred to the "enemy in the Metz Region Burning Towns As He Is Forced Back. Withdrawing to Hindenberg Lines."

In the sector east of Metz and up and down the far flung battle lines of 1914 the Germans are again moving back. Peace talk is in the air reminiscent of the August and September days of 1918.

William Jennings Bryan gave a prohibition talk at Convention hall, Liberty park. The hall was packed. I recall clinging to the outside sill of an open window on the north, close enough to the stage to hear Mr. Bryan and take notes.

Another item mentioned a letter received by my mother from Major George H. Scruton. On Sept. 17, 1918, he had been serving overseas one year.

The Landlord-Tenant Problem—

The past week provided a plethora of contrasting opinions on subjects embracing everything from the landlord-tenant problem to when a guest at a private dinner is privileged to light up a cigarette after finishing his meal.

One Sedalia landlord says he is very much in sympathy with the appeal to provide housing for soldiers and their wives, especially when the two may be separated soon by war's demands. On the other hand he thinks the tenant should show a little respect for the landlord's property and the home atmosphere. He cites a rather painful experience of tendering a couple the run of his home and its accommodations until the newly married husband fell into the practice of coming home drunk. When a hole was burned in a nice spread, hand-made quilt and the lace curtains the landlord began to doubt whether the couple appreciated the courtesies shown them. After they left a repapering job was necessary.

Incidents like this will occur whether the landlord has civilian or soldier tenants. Most of the tenants have respect for the courtesies shown, and for the landlord's property rights. When he gets one of the other kind it's just a bad break and should not sour him on humanity as a whole. Tenants will tell you some landlords are ogres, too.

Soldiers and their wives should be given the utmost consideration, but when their behavior becomes too obnoxious the landlord cannot be criticized for demanding severance of relationship.

So They Say

In a clipping which just reached me from home, I saw some correspondent had stated that I arrived in Normandy waving a $1,000 bill and making bets. I arrived in Normandy incognito. I have never seen a $1,000 bill.—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

Merry-go-round

. . . by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Officials have been trying to keep it quiet, but plans have been completed for using the gigantic Ford Willow Run bomber plant for constructive post-war peace.

It can now be revealed that Ford plans to use Willow Run as the largest agricultural implement production center in the world. Principal product will be a new self-propelling plow, complete with harrow and other attachments, to sell at about $400. This and similar farm equipment which Ford plans to produce at low prices may well revolutionize small farming, give the little farmer a chance to enjoy more leisure and the benefits of civilization.

Inside fact is that Ford for years has tried to work out a way to produce the cheap Ferguson tractor at a low enough price to capture a market of millions.

Ford first met Scotch tractor inventor Harry Ferguson about eighteen years ago. Ferguson told Ford about his low-price tractor, showed him the plans.

"You're ten years ahead of time," Ford told him. "Come back and see me ten years from now."

As Ferguson left, Ford ordered his secretary to make a calendar note of the event. Ten years later to the day, Ferguson showed up at the Ford works. Ford has since worked long and hard with Ferguson, now thinks he can get the tractor price low enough.

Actually, Ford is anxious to have the army release him from plane production as soon as possible, permit him to reconvert speedily to farm equipment. He produced his 8,000th Liberator bomber this month, is now being cut back, but not released. He has placed plenty of pressure on the War Department, still can't move the Brass Hats.

NOTE: While most auto manufacturers are planning to start their auto assembly lines again with high-priced 1942 models, Ford is ready to build and sell a new streamlined 6-cylinder car, minus trimmings, for the price of $600. The new car will get 32 to 35 miles per gallon, according to engineers.

Decline of Mountbatten

One inside fact about the Quebec conference is that Roosevelt went to it determined that Lord Louis Mountbatten should not return to Ceylon as commander of the Allies in the Indian theater.

Cousin of King George, married to one of the most beautiful women in England, Mountbatten was a great commando raider, but the command of a huge operation such as the retaking of Burma and Singapore apparently has been beyond him. U. S. officers stationed at the ornate tropical city of Kandy, the Ceylon headquarters of Lord Mountbatten, have complained of endless inexcusable delays.

Mountbatten's appointment to the Indian theater at last year's Quebec conference precipitated a crisis among the Allied chiefs of staff. When the appointment was decided upon, it was agreed that nothing should be said which would tip off Allied plans to the enemy. Accordingly, Gen. Marshall asked the Chinese military attache in Washington to come to Quebec, where he was told about the Mountbatten appointment and was instructed that it was no secret he could not radio a message to Chiang Kai-shek, for fear the Japanese might decode the message. Marshall told the Chinese attache to send a special courier by airplane to Chungking with the news.

Imagine General Marshall's surprise, therefore, when a few days later he read in the newspapers that British Information Minister Brendan Bracken had announced Mountbatten's appointment to the world.

At the next meeting of the chiefs of staff, General Marshall said in brief: "Gentlemen, when you agree on military strategy, you don't announce your plans to the enemy."

General Sir Alan Brooke, British Chief of Staff, bridled at this and is reported to have said: "That, sir, is a charge of bad faith against His Majesty's Army." To which, according to General

NOTE: It was immediately after this conference that Prime Minister Churchill came to Washington and deftly suggested to Roosevelt that General Marshall be transferred to England to command the coming second front. Churchill praised Marshall's ability and said that, inasmuch as he had lived, planned and worked for the second front, he was the ideal officer to command it. Other U. S. war chiefs, realizing that such a transfer would take Gen. Marshall out of a position where he had supervision over the U. S. armies in Burma, the Pacific, the Mediterranean and other theaters, protested vigorously and Churchill's proposal was overruled.

GI Blood Donors

Folks who don't think blood donors are badly needed should read some of the mail coming back from overseas. One letter from France received this week says:

"At the front we are asked to give blood to those of our comrades who are wounded in action. Many times I have seen GI Joes strip off their shirts, give a pint of blood, then go back into action."

"The other night, our hospital moved up toward the front and received several wounded. For some reason the blood supply failed to arrive. The entire medical staff, although they had been working all night, volunteered to donate blood."

Merry-Go-Round

A lot of people have been wondering how Col. Sol Rosenblatt, former counsel to the Democratic National Committee, got away with being Jimmy Crowell's divorce lawyer while still in uniform. . . . Jimmy himself, former U. S. Minister to Canada, looked a little rueful when Rosenblatt told Doris Duke's attorneys that Crowell contemplated writing a book about their married life—which, of course, was not true. . . . Sam Reber, whom the State Department has appointed as new assistant political adviser to Gen. Eisenhower, is the man who wrote Cordell Hull's blast against de Gaulle which referred to the "alleged Free French". . . . Columnist Edgar Mowrer now refers to Reber as "the alleged Sam Reber."

Mowrer argued: "How do we know he is Sam Reber? He says he is, but that don't make him Sam Reber. I want more proof." . . . Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, at the Wilson reception, was sitting between Myrna Loy and Geraldine Fitzgerald. Quoth Maury Maverick: "Let's go ask him how is Mrs. Morgenthau?"

WASHINGTON—On the heels of American victorious armies, President Roosevelt has decided to appoint nine new ambassadors and ministers to the previously occupied countries of Europe.

Behind his move is the desire to get business re-established with France, Belgium, the Low Countries and the Balkans as soon as possible; also to help steady the countries which, for three to

"WHAT'S his wife like?" The question Mrs. Leonard Beckley asked her husband was the question Everywife asks Everyhusband when he asks her to let another man's wife into her home for the first time. She asks it in self-defense, knowing that she will be on trial.

Sue Beckley liked Walt Hilyard best of all her husband's friends. And so did her husband. Both were with the Station Steel Products Company, which had turned to the making of machine guns and howitzers for the duration. Walt had managed one of the branches in the west and had dropped in for dinner or overnight whenever he came to town.

Now he had been called to the home office and was moving to Staton to live, bringing his wife and daughter with him. The daughter didn't matter much; the wife was a challenge. But Leonard Beckley's answer to his wife's question was a plea of ignorance:

"I haven't seen Margaret Hilyard since I was best man at their wedding in— My God, it can't be 20 years ago!"

"It had better be. You said their daughter is 19."

"Good Lord, how tempus fugit! I can see Margaret now as a bride. She was a beauty, shiny-eyed, always laughing, very sweet, very loving, very intelligent, very—"

"If she was all those 'veries' why didn't you marry her yourself?" "I knew that heaven was saving the angel of all time for me." He bent and pressed a kiss of mock-reverence on her head, and was rewarded with a wail:

"Keep out of my hair! I spent all afternoon at Pauline's, getting it done for this marvelous Margaret that Walt took away from me."

You. Tell me more about her. And for the Lord's sake get into your dinner clothes or they'll find you with one shoe off and one shoe on. I'm nearly dressed."

SHE was already undressed, and stood the exposure well, for Sue had pretty decently won the battle with the years by depending on posture, exercise and starvation instead of rubber and steel to hold her together. As Len whipped out of his coat and waistcoat he was saying:

"The years may have made a lot of changes in Margaret—damn you! That was not for his wife but for his coat and waistcoat as they missed the chair he flung them at. 'Marriage usually molts the wings of young angels.' He bent down, picked up the coat and waistcoat, tossed them at the bed, and missed again. 'Stay there, damn you! But you haven't lost a pinfeather.' This last was for his wife. He started to dance out of his trousers, caught one foot in them and hopped sideways, jurching ominously toward Sue's dressing table. He recovered himself in time; out while he was so close, popped a kiss on her bare shoulder and gazed over it into the mirror at her ripe reflected beauty.

"Gosh, but you look like your son's younger sister!" He sent his nether garments flying through the air for her to pick up, and paused at the bathroom door to prophesy:

four long years, have been under the Nazis. More than half of the new appointments will be non-political career diplomats, probably including Norman Armour, former Ambassador to Argentina, as the new envoy to France. Armour is now Latin-American political adviser to the State Department but served for many years as counselor of the U. S. Embassy in Paris, where he handled the delicate negotiations regarding reparations. He is considered the ablest of the career diplomats now on the shelf. The non-career appointments include: Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati radio-station owner and large stockholder in Proctor and Gam-

He paused at the bathroom door to prophesy: "I'll bet that tonight, as always, when Walt and his wife have gone, you'll say, 'How on earth did such a nice man get himself hooked by such a terrible woman?'"

"I'll bet that tonight, as always, when Walt and his wife have gone, you'll say, 'How on earth did such a nice man get himself hooked by such a terrible woman?'"

The sound of the shower drowned her reply. She went to the bathroom door and repeated it at the top of her lungs: "I suppose I will. But I'll bet she'll be saying the same thing about me on their way home."

He came out into the big towel she handed him and answered as he scrubbed his wet flesh pink: "No. I'll bet she'll be saying, 'How on earth did such a wonderful woman as Sue Beckley ever let herself get hooked by such a dumb as that husband of hers?'"

"When it comes to the blarney, my boy, you're certainly there." As he smeared lather on his face he spluttered: "Shall I cut it out?"

"For heaven's sake, no! Let's save facts for other people—your Mrs. Hilyard, for instance."

"She's not mine, thank heaven!" He talked past his swishing razor: "I hope to God she's a good wife to Walt. He's such a right guy."

Sue had encased herself in a coat of varnish called a dinner gown before he was out in the room again and getting into the fresh things she had spread out for him. He talked right on: "It doesn't often happen that two good men friends have wives that can stand each other. But it would be nice if you could get along with Mrs. Walt." His face vanished in his undershirt and he adored him. Jennifer's her name. He showed her her picture. It was scrawled all over with girlish worship. He still carries a picture of his wife, too; but it's one she had taken just after they were married. He showed it to me once when it fell out of his wallet. She had written on it: "To my beloved from his faithful wife."

HE mused on that: "Faithful wife! Humph! There are so many ways for a wife to be unfaithful. I remember Walt saying once that his daughter was uncannily like what his wife used to be. The way he said 'used to be' gave me a funny feeling that Margaret ain't what she used to be. I hope I'm wrong." He began to dance into his black trousers. "Yet I notice that Walt was never in any great hurry to get back to his home station. He's no chaser. He doesn't run after other women. A lot of men do who really love their wives—they're just polygamous. But Walt is either monogamous or indifferent or— Maybe he's true to what his wife once was. Maybe she is and maybe she isn't."

"Isn't that?"

"True to what she once was." He was buttoning himself in now. "Lots of wives are that way. Whether they're unfaithful to their husbands or not, they're unfaithful to themselves—and that's worse than—"

"Lord, there's the doorknob and you not dressed! I've got to go down and meet that woman all by myself. Hurry!"

She was gone, and he could never make his bow tie behave. He started to follow her with the knot crumpled and askew. As he moved cautiously down the steps he saw Walt standing by the door. Margaret he remembered—still slim, shiny-eyed, sweet, laughing, and so loving that her hand clung to Walt's arm. And Walt was gazing down into her uplooking eyes with the same smile of rapture, devotion and pride he had worn at the altar.

Lieut. Knaus of Clinton Killed

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Sept. 16—(P)—Col. David Wade, commanding the army air base here, announced Friday that an advanced training plane, enroute from the San Marcus, Tex., navigation school to Portland, Ore., army air base crashed near Meachem Ore., Thursday forenoon, killing all five occupants. The plane was on a combat training mission and made its last stop at Pocatello, Idaho.

One of the bodies was identified as of 2nd Lt. Harold T. Knaus, son of Glenn Knaus, Clinton, Mo. In spite of the fact that American troops have been exposed to every known disease, the disease rate is only one-twentieth as high as in World War I, and the lowest ever recorded for the United States Army—Brig. Gen. James S. Simmons, Army Preventive Medicine Service chief.

Award for Philippine Veteran

M. Sgt Theodore S. Millard, shown at the SAAF Line, inspecting a plane.

M. Sgt Theodore S. Millard of the Sedalia Army Air Field will be decorated in Washington, D. C. next month by the British government for services he rendered while serving in the Pacific theatre.

When interviewed, the sergeant said that he was not certain as to why he is to receive this decoration but thinks it is for a salvage job he did on an Australian air strip at Wau in New Guinea.

"The Japs were advancing on this field," Millard relates. "My Troop Carrier outfit was flying supplies and men into the field. We had had three planes wrecked while landing, and planes and parts were needed desperately. My men and I salvaged these ships in seven days, while the Japs fired at the field constantly from less than 500 yards away during the whole operation."

It might seem strange to you that the sarge was not sure as to what the decoration is for, but anyone who reads his record will understand why.

Millard enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1939. One month later he was on the high seas, and, in December of the same year, he arrived in the Philippine Islands.

He was still there in November of 1941, when a group of bomber pilots arrived to await the shipment of their planes from Honolulu via convoy. When war was declared on December 8, the orders for the plane shipment were altered to send the dive bombers on to Australia rather than the Philippines; and the pilots were left on the islands without planes to fly.

"It was a peculiar situation," Sgt Millard recalled. "Nichols Field in Manila, where I was stationed, had already been bombed several times, but our bomber pilots were helpless without their planes, thousands of miles away. "My outfit had orders to evacuate these men to Australia, which we accomplished with one C-39 and two B-18's on December 22," the sergeant continued. "I was flight engineer of the C-39, a title that no longer exists in the Air Corps. It meant that besides being a crew chief, I was a qualified aerial gunner, and that I could also take and send ten words a minute in radio code."

Once in Australia, the bomber pilots picked up their planes, A-24's and P-40's, and proceeded to bomb Sumatra and Java. They provided the only support of the 19th Bomb Group, about which the story, "Queens Die Proudly" was written. These men are mentioned in the story.

Sgt Millard stayed with his faithful Douglas C-39 in Darwin until January 15, 1942, the plane being used to fly a shuttle run between Australia, Borneo, the Celebes, and Timor. At that time he was sent to the hospital, where he remained for two months, recovering from malaria and dysentery.

When released from the hospital, the sergeant was assigned to an ATC squadron, formed of Air Corps men who belonged to no outfit. The squadron was called the 21st Transport Squadron and later became the first TC squadron in the Pacific Theatre. Another similar outfit was formed subsequently in Australia, and the two, together with two additional squadrons from the States.

Decisions On Crushing Japanese

Minister declared. "You must share them."

"We will be in on the death with forces proportionate to the national strength."

Colorfully, illustrating Britain's determination in the Far East, Churchill, reminded his hearers that "the egg hatched here last year is now on foot."

And, he added, the sprout of last year has grown into a tree. The conference, the Prime Minister said, was held "in a blaze of friendship."

Mr. Roosevelt left off the proceedings after Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada introduced him to the assembled reporters. As he talked, his Scotty Flap threatened to lap water from the Presidential glass beside his feet.

Mr. Roosevelt said the outstanding fact of the conference was that it had taken less time, and had produced less argument, and had brought complete unanimity faster than any which he had the Prime Minister ever had conducted.

"Actions Complicated"

He emphasized that the major actions determined upon to beat the Japanese menace in the Pacific, were complicated.

The problem of logistics, as well as strategy plans, he said, had to be considered. For, he said, while plenty of men and materials are available, it still is a task to bring them together up to the scenes of action.

We are going to make certain, the chief executive asserted, of ending barbarism in the Pacific.

Never, he said, was the question of a supreme command for the Pacific considered. He jibed good-naturedly those elements of the press than had speculated about one.

Three Commands

He recalled previous references he had made to the tremendous distances separating arenas of action in combat against the Japanese. And he asserted, there are necessarily three commands—that under Lord Luis Mountbatten in southeast Asia, and the one under General Douglas MacArthur in the South Pacific, and the command afloat under Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

MORE . . . MORE . . . MORE Human beings, the President said, simply cannot transfer themselves mentally over the extreme distances of the Pacific.

Churchill's words constituted a formal British promise that all the material resources and manpower of his country would be pooled with those of America and the English lionisms in the war to smash the Japanese arm of the Axis.

He said that he was not in a humble mood here at this second conference high on the cliff above the green, sail-dotted St. Lawrence. Rather, he exulted in the tremendous pace of Allied arms across Europe and against the outer defenses of the Japanese homeland.

He declared that as soon as possible Britain and the United States were going more forcibly to "beat the evil and barbarous (Japanese) nation to the will of those they have outraged and at whose feet they soon will be suffering."

To Strip of Power

There need be no fear of the future, Churchill stated. The same processes that have led Britain and America from the dark days of Dunkerque and Pearl Harbor, he said, will be applied against Japan.

Then, he said, there will be a resurgence of hope within the world which will repay all the tolls and sacrifices of war.

This he described as the prime purpose of the second Quebec war council.

"The focusing with utmost rapidity of all the resources of Britain and the United States on Japan, that guilty and greedy power which must be stripped of power to molest the world."

Referring to the presence here of Britain's foreign minister, Anthony Eden, the Prime Minister said:

"The business of government in these times is all one. When I have the rare and fortunate chance of meeting President Roosevelt, we are not limited. We talk over every aspect of the situation, in fact, we get along so well and understand each other so well, that it makes it easier and quicker to reach an understanding."

He emphasized the value of personal contacts as against written messages. He pointed, too, to the long associations he and Mr. Roosevelt had had.

School Wants Service Addresses

Addresses of boys or girls in the service who have graduated from Smith Cotton, are requested by the office in Smith Cotton high school for the purpose of sending the boys service letters, which are sent out every month.

A new list of addresses is being set up so that it is necessary for all boys' and girls' addresses to be sent in even though the addresses of the boy was in the list for last year's letters.

There addresses should be sent into the office as soon as possible so every boy will get the first letter.

Dewey Would Exercise "Purge"

ern part of the country "is entitled to a cabinet post."

"They also are entitled," he declared, "to have people who understand their special problems in administrative positions in the national government."

The west feels it has been deserted by the new deal. This part of the country has most unlimited promise."

He has found a "universal feeling," the nominee said, that "there is no one in the national government in Washington who even understands their problems."

Surrounded by reporters in the lodge room of Coeur d'Alene's Masonic temple, after an overnight run over the great divide from Billings, Mont., Dewey declared he has assured those with whom he talked that they would have a voice in the government if he is elected.

Dewey predicted that government controls, rather than tariffs, would be the regulating factor in postwar international trade.

Informed by a reporter that he had received the "tacit" endorsement of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, the candidate shot back, "I didn't know I had it. As I read the dispatch, it said they had not endorsed any candidate for the presidency. Do I make myself clear?"

He referred to the adoption of a resolution at the UMW convention in Cincinnati yesterday denouncing President Roosevelt.

U. S. First Army Into Open After Break Of Siegfried Line

The bag of prisoners taken by the First army alone rose to 173,375, making a total for the Americans of 341,375 since the June 6 landings.

On the northern reaches of the front, the Germans threw in numerous counterattacks in an attempt to check an American push from the captured Dutch city of Maastrecht eastward toward the thinner line of Siegfried defenses pushing north from Aachen.

Push West Of Belfort

The Seventh army on the extreme southern portion of the front solidified its junction with the Third, pushed up to a point 33 miles west of the Belfort gap itself.

The Germans also launched counterattacks against the British north of the Albert Canal near the Dutch border, but to the west they were giving away along the coast and the Poles of the Canadian First army were 2½ miles into Holland.

The main interest in the fighting centered, however, on the struggle around Aachen and it was on this sector that supreme headquarters said the Siegfried line had been "completely penetrated."

SHAEP emphasized that this did not imply a breakthrough, although suggesting strongly that one was likely, since a breakthrough is accomplished only when a breach is exploited to the extent that troops can pour through freely.

Likely Hit Obstacles

The drive put Lt. Gen. Hodges' First infantry on Hitler's Autobahn—a super highway on the road to Cologne and Berlin. It was considered likely there still were some fixed obstacles between them and the Rhine.

Aachen itself, once the capital of Charlemagne's empire of the west, appeared to be toppling, with patrols darting into the city and doughboys surrounding it.

(The German agency DNB said the Allies had thrown reinforcements to the battle of Aachen "on a large scale.")

At Trier, 35 miles farther south, Americans met some of the fiercest resistance yet encountered in Germany.

(The Berlin radio said the Americans were fighting near Bitburg, an important road center 15 miles northeast of Trier and 12 miles inside Germany.)

Near Thionville they seized Fort Goringen.

They found plenty of ammunition for the Krupp guns, and although they could not read the German instructions, they swung them east anyway and fired salvo after salvo on the Germans across the Moselle.

There still were some German forces between the Third army and the seventh to the south, for the latter ran into heavy opposition in pushing seven miles northeast of Vesoul, which is 33 miles west of Belfort.

to the entire Palau chain in which the Japanese have garrisons totaling an estimated 40,000 soldiers. With the strategic southern island and its airdrome in American hands the Yanks would be in position to neutralize the rest of the group.

The Japanese were fighting furiously to stem the American tide. Warships stood offshore to protect the beachhead and aid Yank ground forces. Planes also supported the leathernecks.

Leif Erickson, Associated Press correspondent aboard the American flagship off Peleliu, said naval guns and carrier-based planes blasted the Japanese in a strong ridge position overlooking the airdrome. Battleships and cruisers snuffed out flanking Japanese fire from the high position.

Report Davao Evacuated

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. — (AP) — The port of Davao, on the Philippine island of Mindanao, has been completely evacuated in preparation for "the enemy's invasion of the Philippines," the Tokyo radio said today.

Representatives from the Historical Society were present and explained the fundamental points of a proposed Memorial to be built in Sedalia in tribute to those giving their lives in war and others continuing fighting for peace and freedom in quest of a glorious victory. It will also be for veterans of other wars.

The War Dads is the third organization to which this group has presented this project, and they endorsed the plan one hundred per cent.

Representing the American Legion, V. P. Glenn and Walter Pinkepank made a few remarks for the need of a memorial also. Lt. Smith, from the SAAF, was the principal speaker for the evening and made a splendid address.

A resolution was passed by the War Dads to reduce the local dues for membership for the remaining year. Dads wishing to join may contact C. C. Shaw, chairman of the membership committee.

Mrs. Hayes and baby had gone to Denver for a visit with their husband and father, who is in the army, stationed in Denver.

Fortunately the fact that the child had eaten the pills was discovered immediately after she had swallowed them, and quick medical attention probably saved her life.

Consolidate Hold On Island

By MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Sunday, Sept. 17. — (AP) — Full speed consolidation of the American hold on Morotai island continued without opposition today, while land and navy forces kept a wary eye on by-passed but formidable forces on Halmahera, 11 miles southward.

A headquarters spokesman said the Halmahera forces had sufficient barges to attempt reinforcement of the trapped Japanese garrison on Morotai, most of which have fled to the hills.

Such reinforcement was possible but not likely, because the Americans have full control of the air and sea.

Following their well-tryed invasion pattern, the Yanks sent out patrols on Morotai in an attempt to contract the small Japanese forces remaining on the few evidences of recent Nipponese occupancy along the invasion beaches. Enemy forces have given no indication whether they will attempt a counter offensive.

Meanwhile, Yank engineers, who landed with the assault troops, continued their high-speed preparation of Pitoe airdrome on Morotai's southwestern coast. Once in use the airdrome will be used for new and probably heavier neutralization raids against nearby Japanese bases, including those of the Philippines.

Will Expand Aid For Cripples

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 16. — (AP) — Missouri's vocational rehabilitation program has been extended to provide medical care—including surgery—for indigent cripples, Roy Scantlin, state superintendent of schools, announced today.

At the same time, the Missouri state medical association announced formation of a committee to advise rehabilitation officials and aid in arranging for care of the indigent disabled.

Until last spring, the state program for vocational rehabilitation was limited to vocational training and providing artificial arms or legs for those who needed them in order to go back to a job.

But the special session of the legislature last April revised the law to concur with changes in the federal act extending vocational rehabilitation work over a wider field. Federal funds also are provided.

Plenty Of Jobs For Women In Coast Guard

They Attend Schools For Special Training

Where do SPARS go when they leave the Training Station at Palm Beach, Fla., and how are they used? These were among the first questions asked about the Women's Reserve of the United States Coast Guard, and they're still being asked.

There are many factors which go into the selection process to determine the coast guard job of each SPAR. Taken into consideration to form this overall picture are the immediate needs of the coast guard, the educational background of the SPAR and her work experience, the results of the aptitude tests taken by the SPARS, and the desires of the SPAR herself, if they are in accordance with her qualifications and the needs of the service.

Skill Of Value

When a SPAR's civilian skill is of particular value to the service, she is almost certain of obtaining a special assignment. Needs for these special abilities—I. B. M. operators, dental assistants, etc.—fluctuate and are never certain until the actual time of assignment. General billets are those not requiring previous training—some being unskilled, others calling for a skill which can be learned on the job. Still other assignments call for special training, in which case the SPAR goes on to specialist school at the end of her "boot" training.

Whatever your special skill—or lack of it—an important job awaits you in the Coast Guard SPARS. There is a vital need for your help. You may apply at the SPAR Recruiting Office, 901 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Arrested In Series Of Tragedies

NEW YORK, Sept. 16. — (AP) — Peter Demetrakopoulos, 50-year-old machinist, was arrested in Sheepshead Bay today a few hours after the bodies of his wife and two young daughters were found in their apartment and a warrant had been issued charging him with the slaying of his wife and two daughters near New Paltz, N. Y.

The slaying body of his 43-year-old wife, Mary, and their two daughters, Annie, 13, and Helen, 5, were discovered by Detective James Philbin and other Ozone Park police, when they forced entrance into the family's four room apartment in Queens.

Philbin said the officers had gone to the apartment to arrest Demetrakopoulos in response to a request from police at New Paltz after the slaying early today of Peter Takis, a farmer, who Philbin said, was Demetrakopoulos' uncle.

Medical Examiner Jacob A. Werne said homicidal wounds in the woman's neck had caused her death. The two girls, he said, were believed after cursory examination to have died from drowning. Captain James Hanley reported that on Friday night Demetrakopoulos was to meet his wife in a lawyer's office to talk about getting a divorce but that she failed to appear. He later went home, Hanley said, and found his wife sitting on the stairs leading to the apartment. Demetrakopoulos told them that when he went into the apartment, followed by his wife, he found that she had killed his two children.

"After finding his children dead he became frantic," Hanley said. "He picked up a pair of shears and stabbed his wife."

Finns Battle With Germans

LONDON, Sept. 16. — (AP) — Finnish troops tonight were waging an undeclared war against their former German allies and a stream of vehicles began pouring across the northern border as weary Finns tried to escape to Sweden in view of an impending open declaration this week-end.

Finland is faced with defending her islands in the Gulf of Finland against German invaders, helping Russia drive Nazi troops across the Finnish borders according to their terms of armistice, and discussing terms of peace with Russia.

Fighting between Nazi and Finnish troops began two days ago on the island of Suursaari (Hogland) in the Gulf of Finland, where the Germans established a beachhead.

(An unconfirmed Finnish report recorded by the OWI said the German force surrendered last night and that 700 prisoners were taken.)

Russians are already "fighting their way across Finland" and have encircled two German divisions that Hitler declared were unable to leave by yesterday's deadline because of distances involved, the BBC said, quoting Helsinki.

"German workers," the broadcast said, "the watchword now is 'every man against Hitler' take up your arms."

The broadcast added that the Nazis planned "mass murder on an unheard of scale" as a last ditch measure.

Gen. Old, ITTC, One of First To Fly Hazardous "Hump"

In a current issue of Life there appears an article on the history of what is perhaps the most famous airway in the world—the "Hump". The story credits Brig Gen William D. Old, recently appointed Commanding General of the I Troop Carrier Command, of which the Sedalia Army Air Field is a part, with one of the first runs along the now off-travel route.

"The exact origins of the 'Hump' run are lost in the confusion of our entry into the war," the article reads. The exact date of the first run is no longer a certainty. A test flight was made in 1941 by the China National Aviation Corporation, but no other flight was recorded to have been made along the hazardous route until April, 1942, when the Allied collapse in Burma isolated China and gave the establishment of regular air service between India and China the highest war priority on the Asiatic continent. It is believed that Gen Old flew the "Hump" on April 9 or 10 of that year. He was flying a cargo marked SUPER SECRET and SPECIAL RUSH. It was gasoline for refueling the Doolittle planes in China after they had bombed Tokyo.

Flying with 10 cargo carriers which Pan American had stripped from its Africa run, Gen Old and other early-day ferry pilots "tackled the toughest mountain range in the world, kept China in the war, brought supplies to General Stilwell in Burma, and evacuated the wounded from the front." ... All this they accomplished without weather reports, navigation aids, adequate fields, ground transportation, or radio. They had to take off on instrument, fly by compass, and let down by calculated flying time.

Their home field was in Assam and was crowded with RAF transports and Mohawks, American planes, Pan American cargo carriers, and numerous passenger liners. Here officers and men ate together in one mud "basha" on a dirt floor. There were no lights, and native cooks served bully beef and British biscuits.

General Pulled CQ Every Day

The only alarm clock belonged to General Old. Every morning he awakened each of the men individually and drove them to the field. There was only one shift—a 16-hour one—broken only by sandwiches and hot drinks. The Japs were in the air constantly, and the only protection the "Hump" had was provided by two P-40's lent by Gen Chennault and two P-43's from the Chinese Air Force.

During the month of May, 1942, 80 tons of supplies were flown to China; in June, 106 tons; in July, 85 tons.

"By August it was clear that Burma was going to stay closed for a long time, that China was thoroughly blockaded, and that if she were to be supplied at all, it would have to be by air," the story continues. "In that month Maj Gen Clayton Bissell of the Tenth Air Force was placed in command of the operation, and its volume began to rise."

At that time Gen Chennault's China Air Task Force was operating as a subordinate unit and was setting up a shriek for more material. By the Fall, 600 tons a month were being flown over the mountains, and an operational pattern had been worked out. But the Japs had begun to realize the importance of the Assam route, and in October came their first raid.

The trail-blazing period was over when in December of 1942, the Tenth Air Force handed over operations to the ATC. Immediately, for security reasons, a new blackout was slapped on and lasted until early this year.

The Life article was written by Theodore White, head of Time and Life Magazines Chungking Bureau, who knows the Hump's history and dangers first hand. Having lived with the fliers who opened the Hump route in the spring of 1942, White has flown it at least five times and is familiar with every change in scenery that slips by beneath the plane along the way from Assam to China—from the rice paddies and tea plantations to the giant "Hump" itself. He describes the famous "Hump" as "a line drawn across the eastern Himalayas and the forests of Burma by American blood and courage," which has kept China alive.

OPPORTUNITY FOR DISTRIBUTOR in Home and Industrial Heating Field

Immediate and Postwar Sales Potentials

THIS is an unusual opportunity for a local business man or firm to become a distributor for a leading and long-established product, which has public acceptance, with immediate and greatly increased postwar sales potentials in the home and commercial heating field.

As a result of wartime restrictions on fuel and power, and the need for their conservation, the coal-burning Combustioneer Automatic Stoker has received a great sales impetus. Before the war, sales were mounting steadily. After the war, stoker sales will break all previous records, due to the wartime publicity on fuel and the home building and modernization programs.

Combustioneer models are today available for users of 25 tons of coal per year or more. They are saving coal, reducing furnace tending and cutting fuel costs by 20% to 30% for apartments, stores, business buildings and factories.

When Combustioneer Domestic Models are again available, there will be literally thousands of local prospects who will need and want the luxury of uniform, economical, automatic coal heat in their homes.

Combustioneer has many outstanding features. It is backed by 28 years of engineering research in the precision manufacture of automatic coal burning equipment. Combustioneer distributors will be strongly supported by national and localized advertising.

This is the logical time for a substantial business man or firm to secure a valuable franchise and build immediate and profitable sales which will greatly accelerate after the war. For a personal interview you are invited to write to:

SAAF, a field that wastes nothing and salvages everything possible, discovered that they had accumulated almost ten thousand glass jars of all sizes. It was decided that these jars, excellent for preserves, if "spread" around Sedalia and the surrounding territories, could be of great help in alleviating the shortage of containers needed for canning. After necessary arrangements had been made, the jars were taken to Sedalia and placed in the new National Guard Armory. An item appeared in the Sedalia Democrat, announcing that anyone who wanted jars could have them. Just stop by at the armory, pick them up, and take them with you, the article explained. When housewives read of the good news in the paper, they dashed to the armory with nothing but self-preservation in mind. The jars were gone completely within one week. Farmers' wives from nearby farms came to town in cars, horse-drawn vehicles, and some even by foot—just to obtain some of these SAAF jars. One woman who had walked to town for the jars was asked about the inconvenience and replied: "Ordinarily, I would 'wax' furious at the thought of having to walk so far just for some jars. However, this is war, and it is just another thing I have to 'put up' with."

Cologne—"Crossroads of Western Germany"

(Copr. Underwood & Underwood)

Cologne, Germany's third largest city, toward which Allied armies are racing across Belgium, is known as the "crossroads of western Germany." In this ancient Rhinish capital meet all the Rhine valley and Paris-Berlin railroads and Europe's greatest inland waterway. In addition Cologne commands rail approaches to Belgian ports. Founded in 38 B. C. by the Roman Emperor Claudius, who named it for his mother, Cologne or Koln, as the Germans call it, has had a hectic history through many wars. Occupied by the British for seven years after the World War I armistice, it was one of the first cities taken over by Hitler's troops when Germany reoccupied the demilitarized Rhineland in 1936. Center of a vast industrial area containing many war industries, Cologne was a target even for World War I's tiny bomb-laden. Called Germany's most-bombed city in this war, it has been "concentrated" by hundreds of raids, culminating in 100-plane "blockbuster" attacks. Photo at top, above, shows British planes swooping in for low-level attack on Cologne war plants. At left, British occupation forces of 1919 are seen entering the city. In contrast its foreign policies were solidly supported. Bottom photo shows general view of city, dominated by the great cathedral, which Germans claim was ruined by British air raids.

Merchants Vs Gliders At SAAF Today

Sedalia Fans Are Welcome To Be The Guests Of Air Base

The Sedalia Merchants baseball team will go to the Sedalia Army Air Field this afternoon where they cross bats with the Gliders in the final game of the season for the SAAF team. The game scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

In accordance with an invitation issued by Colonel Jerome B. McCauley, commander of the SAAF, Sedalia fans are invited to the air base to see the game. Guests are requested to arrive at the airfield shortly before 2 o'clock and will be permitted to be on the base until after the game is completed.

Second Meeting For Teams

It is the second meeting for these two teams. The first game which started off to be one of the best seen on the local diamond ended in a last minute rally for the Gliders who scored a 12 to 3 victory.

"Lefty" Hal Green will do mound honors for the Merchants with Don Weller behind the plate.

Although the Gliders will take the field with the odds against them, they still pack the determination to win which may outweigh everything else. In past weeks the team has been suffering from lack of players and have had to change the lineup and substitute new players nearly every week due to the shipping out of the first of the season regulars.

The full-lineup for the Gliders cannot be given at this time although it is certain that Bresin will be on the mound with Fed. uniak working behind the plate.

Players making the trip for the Merchants are: Livengood, Ellisworth, Crider, Woolford, Morris, Shirley, Williams, J. Smithers, C. Smithers, Green, Weller and Manager Nichols. They will leave Hugel's at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Sport Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

RECENTLY the National Baseball Congress at Wichita, Kansas, completed another annual baseball tournament, and this year the United States Championship went to the Fliers from Sherman Field, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. Incidentally a Sedalia had a big part to play in their winning this title—none other than Marvin Blaine, who formerly pitched with the Sedalia Athletics and Sedalia Merchants.

It is now Private First Class Blaine, and he has been in the army a little more than a year and stationed at Ft. Leavenworth. He has been a member of the Fliers team since going there, and has taken his turn on the mound and done his share of pitching for the soldier team.

However, winning the championship was a great honor and expectations of a trip to Canada vanished when it was ruled by the War Department that the Fliers, as an army representative, could not compete outside the continental limits of the United States.

Ray Dumont, president of the NBC, in making the announcement stated the playoff series scheduled for London, Ontario, September 16, will be staged after the termination of the war—the first international tilt in the global program of the National Baseball Congress.

We all hope that Private Blaine will be on hand when that playoff comes and the entire Fliers team will be intact so that they can have those international honors.

DUCK season opens just a month off, October 14, and runs through December 31, and now is the time for the duck hunters to get their blinds built. That's the dope on duck blinds passed on to me to pass on to you—I'm no expert. I do happen to know that several hunters have already started building their blinds and preparing them for comfort in their hunting hours.

The fact the government has said there will be more shells for hunters this season has some of the boys all "hepped up" for a good season. But the shell situation isn't what was expected by a great many of these hunters.

As one dealer told me the past week when I queried him about the shell situation. He remarked to me "Well you can expect a large shipment about the last of February. Remember when they said production of shells would start soon, several months ago, well it was six months before we got much of that production. They say it will be the last of October before production on this new batch will start, so figure it out".

However, a large number of hunters I am told have gotten a box here and there and are all set for the fire works early the morning of the 14th.

THE Gliders of the Sedalia Army Air Field, play their last baseball game of the season today when they meet the Sedalia Merchants on the SAAF diamond. The public is invited to attend the game in accordance with an invitation issued by Colonel Jerome B. McCauley.—The Junior Legion baseball team is carrying on out of the season for the Legion, they play today at Liberty Park against Windsor, and again next Sunday against Higginsville.—Sergeant George Sanders of the SAAF base gym is rather pleased with his boxing material and expects to have plenty of opposition for the Golden Glove this winter.—Sanders also is doing some coaching in wrestling and his boys will show off in front of the base personnel sometime in the near future in a wrestling show.—The big grid game of Saturday was that of the Iowa Pre-Flight and Michigan won by a score of 12 to 7.

Two Forward Passes Win For Michigan

Iowa Pre-Flight Is Defeated In First Major Game Of Year

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 16.—(P)—A pair of forward passes from Navy Trainee Bill Culligan to Freshman End Dick Rifenburg provided the knockout drops today as Michigan edged Iowa Pre-Flight, 12 to 7, before a crowd of 23,400 in the nation's first major collegiate football game of the season.

A 17-Yard Pass

Culligan uncloiled his slingshot right arm nearly in the second period for the first Wolverine touchdown shot, throwing 17 yards to Rifenburg, who eluded the Seahawk safety man, Don Waldron, on the Pre-Flight 30-yard line and scored untouched. Quarterback Joe Ponsetto's try for the point was wide.

The second Culligan-Rifenburg scoring heave brought Michigan from behind on the third play of the final period. From the Wolverine 44 Culligan found the pass-grabbing end beyond Waldron's target, and Rifenburg romped the remaining 28 yards without having a hand laid on him. Ponsetto's placement attempt again was wide.

Browns Take Over Lead In Am. League

One-Hit Pitching They Wallop White Sox 9-0

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16.—(P)—The St. Louis Browns took over first place in the tight American League pennant race tonight by walloping the Chicago White Sox 9 to 0 behind Jack Kramer's one-hit pitching.

Home Run By Gutteridge

The Browns blasted Decie Lopat and Jake Wade for 14 hits, including Don Gutteridge's home run and doubles by George McQuinn and Myron Hayworth. Kramer did not walk a man and struck out six.

The Browns scored in the first when Gutteridge singled to open the frame. He went to third on Mike Kreevich's single and scored on Milt Byrnes' fly.

McQuinn started the second off with a double. Hayworth followed suit and scored McQuinn. Kreevich singled to center, scoring Hayworth.

The Browns opened another drive in the fourth when Kramer singled. Kreevich singled to left field for his third straight hit. Chet Laabs singled to score Kramer.

Kreevich, a former White Sox, got his fourth hit in the sixth. Laabs singled and Kreevich scored on Stephens' left center hit, Laabs moving to third. Laabs and Stephens worked the double steal, adding another counter.

The Brownies blasted the Sox in the seventh after Wade had gone in to pitch for the Sox, adding their last three runs.

Christman walked and McQuinn bunted but when Ralph Hodgins threw wild to first, Christman scored and McQuinn went to third. He scored as Hayworth grounded out. Gutteridge then got his home run.

Free-For-All Is Retired As Two-Year Old

Bad Front Ankles Is Reason John Marsh Orders Needed Rest

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(P)—What appeared to be a two-horse battle for juvenile turf honors took another turn today with the announcement that John Marsh's retirement for the season, and the unexpected triumph of Claud C. Tanner's Best Effort in the $25,000 Cowdin stakes at Aqueduct.

After watching his highly regarded Errand finish third behind Best Effort and War Jeep from Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's Maine Chance farm in the Cowdin, Marsh said that Free For All would not face the barrier again as a two-year-old because of bad front ankles.

Winner of Five Straight Races

Winner of five straight races and $109,575 to rank with Walter M. Jeffords' Pavot as the only undefeated two-year-olds of the year, Free For All came out of the recent Washington Park victory with his already sore ankles bothering him more than ever.

Nevertheless, he was shipped to New York with the Sept. 30 Belmont futurity and a meeting with Pavot as his objective.

Pavot has seven straight and $125,150. When the son of Questionnaire failed to show improve, trainer Trainer Burley Parke and Marsh decided to send him back to Tom Platt's Kentucky farm. There he will be fired and pointed for the 1945 Kentucky Derby.

In picking up the purse of $20,650, Best Effort paid his scattered backers in the crowd of 29,806 the long odds of 13 to 1. Ted Atkinson, the country's leading jockey, was in the saddle for his fifth straight victory in two days and his 200th triumph of the year.

M. U. Tigers Reveal Offensive Power

Tigers Have Few Injuries In Practice

Week Of Scrimmage And Pass Defensive Work Will Be Held

Smith-Cotton Tigers are gradually whipping into shape for their first game of the season which is scheduled for next Thursday night at Marshall when they meet the Owls of the high school on the Missouri Valley gridiron. It will be Marshall's second game of the season having already defeated the Boonville high school eleven last Thursday night by a score of 12 to 0.

Coaches Ligon, Dow, and Steiner, haven't had much to say the past week just who would be in the starting lineup, but gave indications the boys who had first and second team experience from last year, will probably be the starters. This does not necessarily mean the new recruits will not have an opportunity to see action, as they plan on using as many boys as possible so as to have the best pickings for the varsity for the remainder of the year.

Shaw Has Shoulder Injury

This season the Tigers to date have had excellent success in being able to dodge injuries other than minor bruises here and there. Only one boy has had to miss practice, and he could have practiced, but the coaches thought it would be better for him to take a rest. This boy was Wayne Shaw who had a slight shoulder injury, and Joe Herick didn't miss practice but he had the next day injury a bruised leg. Herick did go through light practice during the weekend.

Marshall has the well-known edge, having had the first game of the season and have had that much football experience for the season. In surveying past games with Marshall it is a well known fact their victories over Sedalia have been scored on long passes.

This week the Tigers will experience some hard work in pass defense, in an endeavor to stop any attack the Owls might have dreamed up to beat the Tigers. Scrimmage will be held every night this week to keep the boys in condition as well as the pass defense workout.

A black and white illustration of a man plowing a field with a horse-drawn plow. In the background, there is a barn, a fence, and a cloudy sky. The signature "G. Scott" is visible in the bottom right corner.

While soil naturally is depleted of minerals, organic matter, and nitrogen by the crops it grows, a large measure of the fertility can be restored simply and quickly by the growing of cover and green-manure crops. They do not add lime, phosphorus, or potash, agronomists point out, but they can increase production tremendously by the addition to the soil of organic matter, nitrogen, and other plant foods.

When land is not being used by the main crop, legumes, small grains, and grasses as a cover also prevent erosion, conserve moisture, and decrease the need for plowing. The cover also hold plant food that might be leached out, and supply large quantities of nutritious livestock feed. When turned under, they add organic matter to the soil which makes it absorb water more readily and gives it new "life."

WFA points out, as well as making heavy demands on limited supplies of nitrogen fertilizers.

Legumes and grasses in rotation with cultivated crops have a double purpose by increasing the fertility of the soil, and in turn the crop yield, and by protecting the soil from destructive erosion and loss of moisture. Feed for livestock is made available by such cover crops as alfalfa, kudzu, red clover, sericea lespedeza, and sweet-clover. A good rotation usually includes legumes and legume-grass mixtures, says WFA. The cover is used extensively as a winter cover in practically all areas.

Rotations will vary in different climates and locations and on different soils. Each farm requires its own cover-crop program, to produce the best results, but once it has been es-

Fourteen of the members of the first board will be chosen by lot to serve two-year terms, and the other 15 will serve one year terms, with future governors to be chosen for two year terms.

Post-War Bill On Highways

Passed For Three
Year Program
In The Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—(P)—A bill authorizing the Federal government to spend $1,475,250,000 on a three-year post-war highway program passed the senate by voice vote late Friday.

It was sent to the house where prospects were strong that action would be deferred until after the congressional recess for the November election.

The measure authorizes the government to spend $200,000,000 a year for three post-war years on main line federal highways, $125,000,000 for urban and $125,000,000 for farm-to-market roads, all the funds to be matched by the states on a 50-50 basis.

An exception was made in the case of Arkansas, the bulk of whose gasoline and other revenues from highway users are now pledged to the amortization of road bonds.

The senate adopted by a vote of 30 to 28, an amendment by Senator McClellan (Ark.) to provide that any state which has pledged all of its highway revenues to the payment of road indebtedness may receive its share of the federal allocations, even though it can not match all such sums.

At the same time, it rejected a proposal by Senators Ferguson and Vandenberg, Michigan Republicans, to permit the use of federal money in the purchasing of rights of way for highways in and adjacent to cities.

Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) and Danaher (R-Conn.) lost their fight for another amendment to provide that in the apportionment of federal money, no state shall receive less than an amount equal to 60 per cent of the federal gasoline tax revenue collected in the state.

In addition to the funds the states have to match, the bill authorizes the government to spend $25,000,000 a year on forest highways, $12,500,000 on forest road and trail developments and $4,250,000 on national park highways.

Seventh Army Be Directed By Eisenhower

Advancement Of
Gen. Bradley In Rank Confirmed

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 16—(P)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was entrusted Friday with the greatest command ever given an American—command of all western front forces to which the U. S. Seventh army driving up from the Mediterranean has now been added.

In accordance with a previously prepared plan, and at the direction of the combined chiefs of staff, Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army came under Eisenhower's direction.

The greatest American force ever put into the field is the dominant part in this tremendous organization, for it includes the First, the Third, the Seventh and the Ninth U. S. armies.

It also was announced that Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, deputy commander in the Mediterranean, has been made commander of the Sixth American army group composed of American and French units. Presumably, Patch's Seventh is under his command.

Devers undoubtedly takes a rank equal to those of the other group commanders, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley of the American Twelfth, and Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery of the British Twenty-First.

Bradley's group embraces the First and Third U. S. armies, Montgomery's the British Second and the Canadian First, and it is believed Devers will have the Seventh and Ninth.
